Investment Strategy

The Payden Floating Rate Fund's investment objective is to seek a high level of current income through floating-rate debt instruments, with a secondary objective of long-term capital appreciation. At least 80% of fund assets will be floating rate. The Fund generally invests in the higher-quality segment of the market and looks for companies with good growth prospects, superior products, and strong management teams.

Fund Highlights

- » High-yield loan focus. Opportunistic exposure to short-term high-yield corporates.
- » Payden primarily focuses on the higher quality end of the high-yield loan market. We believe that the risk-return profile of BB and high single-B rated loans is superior to that of lower-rated loans.
- » Due to the size of the Fund, we can buy the loans we want and get meaningful new issuance allocations, which is difficult for funds with assets above $1 billion.
- » The primary risk to the Fund is a downturn in the economy.

Role In Portfolio

High-Yield Loans – Appropriate for investors who seek higher yields but do not want significant exposure to interest rate risk. Loans can be used as a hedge against rising interest rates in fixed-income portfolios as they are historically negatively correlated with U.S. Treasuries.

Market

- » The Bloomberg U.S. Leveraged Loan Index returned +1.1% for the quarter. In contrast, high-yield bonds returned +1.4%, while high-grade bonds returned +0.8%.
- » During the quarter, $171 billion was issued in new loans, though most of the proceeds were used to refinance and/or reprice debt, as net issuance was $50 billion. Total issuance for 2025 was $984 billion, of which $199 billion reflected net borrowing.
- » The loan default rate was 2.9% (including distressed exchanges) over the trailing 12 months.

Outlook

- » Loan issuers are more leveraged than their high-yield bond counterparts. While positive economic conditions are favorable for the asset class, loans are also more sensitive to any deceleration in growth.
- » Loans have outsized exposure to the technology sector relative to bonds, which will likely drive incremental volatility in 2026.
- » Valuations in loans are optically more attractive than in bonds; however, we believe that the relative yield advantage in loans can largely be explained by the lower-quality composition of the asset class overall. Security selection will be crucial in 2026.

FOOTNOTES

^A Returns less than one year are not annualized. ^B The performance of the Bloomberg U.S. Leveraged Loan Index since inception (5.80%) does not align with the Fund's inception date, as the index began on 01/31/2019. The Floating Rate Fund's performance since 01/31/2019 is 5.71%. ^C The minimum initial investment may be modified for certain financial intermediaries that submit trades on behalf of underlying investors. Payden Funds' distributor may lower or waive the minimum initial investment for certain categories of investors at their discretion. ^D Effective duration is a measure of the Fund's price sensitivity to changes in interest rates. ^E The 30-day SEC yield represents the dividends and interest earned for a 30-day period, annualized, and divided by the net asset values per share at the end of the period. The SEC yield is computed under a standardized formula which assumes all portfolio securities are held to maturity. This value may differ from the actual distribution rate of the fund. ^F Represents a 30-day SEC yield without adjusting for fee waivers or expense reimbursements. ^G Total Annual Fund Operating Expenses include all direct operating expenses of the Fund, as well as 0.01% Acquired Fund Fees and Expenses incurred indirectly by the Fund through its investment in other mutual funds. Payden & Rygel has contractually agreed to limit Total Annual Fund Operating Expenses After Fee Waiver or Expense Reimbursement to 0.70%. This agreement has a one-year term ending February 28, 2026. Please note that the 0.70% expense level does not include Acquired Fund Fees and Expenses, interest, taxes, and extraordinary expenses. ^H Ratings are measured on a scale that generally ranges from AAA (highest) to D (lowest) and are subject to change. Security ratings are assigned using the highest rating of Moody's, S&P, and Fitch.
